PLEASE READ THIS FIRST. This option allows the provider to submit revisions to an approved accredited course. The training provider must follow the instructions for submitting a course application. ALL revised materials must be included and must be consistent with the current version of the Florida Building Code. The training provider should ensure that all information (including course and material titles and course summary) is consistent with the revisions submitted. An application for course revision must be accredited, but only the portions revised are subject to accreditation. This option is available only for existing approved courses (not for courses submitted but not yet approved).

 PLEASE READ THIS FIRST. This option allows the provider to indicate that the course has been reviewed and no change is needed. This tool is for use when an advanced course is subject to renewal by a licensing board and the board requires review of said courses by the Florida Building Commission. This tool may NOT be used when a new version of the Florida Building Code is adopted and the advanced course does not require any change (i.e. is still current under new code provisions), and the Florida Building Commission requires that the training provider review the course to ensure no change is needed. In this situation, the provider must use the One Change tool to update the code version in the title, summary, and any materials for the course. The training provider must affirm no change is needed for the course.

- Reviewed, No Changes
- One Change

Rule #: 61G20-6.002, Florida Administrative Code

Message from webpage

PLEASE READ THIS FIRST. This option allows the provider to make ONE change to an approved accredited course that requires revision to correct or update a reference, table, diagram, or quoted provision of code, law, or administrative rule. The ONE change may be made in multiple places in the course materials. This tool may be used when a new version of the Florida Building Code is adopted and the advanced course does not require any change (i.e. is still current under new code provisions), and the Florida Building Commission requires that the training provider review the course to ensure no change is needed. In this case, the one change is the code version (i.e. 2010 instead of 2007) to update this information in the course title, summary, and any materials for the course. The exact change, the specific location(s) of the change, and reason for the change must be listed in the section asking for this information. The training provider must affirm this is the only change made to the course.
